

Now you can prepare for IIT-JEE, CET on your mobile

Friday, 20 March 2009

BASE, the Bangalore-based educational training organisation providing training for IIT-JEE, AIEEE, AIPMT, CET and COMEDK, has announced that it will be the strategic content partner for an interactive and integrated mobile learning and assessment tool mPlg. mPlg, the mobile phone based testing platform created by Ipomo Communications India delivers and renders question papers of various competitive exams. The content provision will start off with IIT-JEE-09 and CET- 09.

“This partnership will provide students opting for mPlg the opportunity to benefit from the expertise BASE has in training students to face national level competitive examinations for nearly two decades,” said H S Nagaraja, director and founder of BASE.

“Students subscribing to mPlg will have access to exhaustive course material compiled by BASE. This learning tool will help students fine-tune their skills and prepare better for competitive exams in state and national levels,” said Vallish N Herur, director, BASE.News Story link
